What Makes Four Seasons Punta Mita Special

Authentic Cultural Integration

The resort goes beyond surface-level luxury by deeply integrating Mexican culture, from Huichol art to culinary traditions, creating meaningful connections to the destination.

Thoughtful Family Focus

Unlike many luxury resorts that primarily target couples, Four Seasons Punta Mita excels at creating exceptional experiences for all ages without compromising sophistication.

Natural Beauty + Luxury

The resort harmoniously blends with its stunning natural setting, allowing guests to experience luxury while feeling connected to the breathtaking landscape.

Location: Where Paradise Meets Luxury

Four Seasons Punta Mita sits at the tip of the Punta Mita peninsula on Mexico's stunning Pacific coast.

It's located within a private 1,500-acre community, giving you that perfect balance of seclusion and accessibility.

Just a 40-minute drive from Puerto Vallarta International Airport, you'll feel worlds away while still being close enough to explore vibrant nearby towns like Sayulita.

Best Time to Visit

Punta Mita enjoys over 300 days of sunshine per year, making it a year-round destination. However, different seasons offer unique experiences:

High Season (November-April)

Perfect weather with sunny days, low humidity, and temperatures around 75-85°F (24-29°C). Whale watching season (December-March). Higher prices and more crowds.

Shoulder Season (May-June, October)

Still good weather with fewer crowds and better rates. May and June offer warm temperatures before the rainy season.

Low Season (July-September)

Hottest and most humid months with occasional afternoon rain showers. Lower rates and fewer tourists. Great surfing conditions but higher humidity.

Whale Watching: Gentle Giants

From mid-December to late March, Banderas Bay becomes a privileged spot to observe magnificent humpback whales. These gentle giants migrate to the warm waters to mate and give birth, creating an unforgettable wildlife spectacle.

Boat excursions offer close encounters, and it's common to see mothers with calves, males competing for females, and even spectacular breaches where whales launch themselves out of the water.

This seasonal activity is one of the region's most magical experiences and shouldn't be missed if you're visiting during whale season.

Shopping & Markets

Punta Mita's center has a stylish area with local boutiques and upscale restaurants. Avenida Las Redes is home to shops selling indigenous Huichol textiles and boho-chic beach fashion, such as Sea & Salt Beachstore and Mexican Soul.

For a more authentic shopping experience, venture to nearby towns like Sayulita for colorful markets selling handcrafted jewelry, clothing, and art. La Cruz Market (Sundays, November-April) is also worth a visit for artisanal goods and local foods.

Shopping here is about finding unique, handcrafted items that capture the spirit of Mexico – perfect souvenirs to remember your trip.
